SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS PLEASES THE PEOPLE

Show Is One Of the Cleanest and Best Attractions Ever Appearing in the City

Friday was a gala day in Rhinelander
the occasion being the appearance here of the Sells-Floto Consolidated Shows. While not as large as some tent shows that have previously exhibited in this city this circus is generally recognized as one of the cleanest and best ever seen here.

The show arrived at an early hour
over the Northwestern road from Ironwood traveling on its own special train of twenty-eight cars. A large crowd gathered in the railroad yards to witness the unloading which was done in a quiet and orderly manner.
Owing to the long haul to the fair grounds it was nearly noon before the tents were pitched and in readiness for the performance.

The street parade at eleven o'clock was a brilliant attraction fully equaling the processions produced by many of the largest circuses. The gayly dressed men and women, the well groomed horses in their shining harnesses, the golden cages and chariots
and other features made a pleasing picture that delighted the crowds that lined the streets.

As the circus was to appear the next day at Appleton the management deemed it advisable to give only one performance here in order to easily cover the long railroad jump.
Announcements to this effect were scattered about the city and when at one o'clock the doors to the big show opened there was a large crowd waiting for admittance.

The menagerie, although not large,
contained several interesting animals including tiger cubs that amused
the little folks. The famous Armour team of six prize winning grays occupied this tent and proved the chief feature. These horses have been exhibited at horse shows in all parts of America and Europe and have won hundreds of medals and ribbons. "Billy" Wales, who drives the team, is an expert whip and during the performance in the main tent gave a wonderful exhibition of his skill in handling the reins.

The performers who form the roster of the Sells-Floto shows are among the highest in their class before the public to-day. The high wire walking excited admiration. The feats of the famous Nelson family of acrobats were marvelous. Their equal has never been seen with any circus showing in Rhinelander. This family consists of four generations all being skilled artists in their line.

The performing elephants were exceptionally well trained. The clowns were numerous and furnished plenty of fun, introducing a number of side splitting stunts.

The show has three hundred beautiful horses. These animals are all blooded stock, selected with judgment and care and represent an enormous outlay of money.

The Sells-Floto shows are entirely free of grafters, gamblers and short change manipulators. There are no tough characters or hangers on. It is to be regretted that many people were forced to pay sixty cents for their tickets as this was not in keeping with the general policy of the show.

The management was well pleased with the liberal patronage accorded the circus in Rhinelander.

ATTORNEY FRICKE LOCATES HERE

Rhinelander is to have another lawyer. Attorney Chas. Fricke of Minocqua has decided to engage in the practice of his profession in this city and will move here within a few days. He has rented quarters in the office rooms on Brown Street at one time occupied by Attorney H. F.
Steele. His family will occupy A. E.
Weesner's residence at 904 Keenan Street.

Mr. Fricke has been a resident of Oneida county for over two years.
He served one year as second municipal judge of this county. He is spoken of as a capable attorney and will no doubt be successful in this city.

POLES FIGHT WITH KNIVES.

Two Men Have Bloody Encounter at Solk Boarding House.

The boarding house conducted by Mrs. Solk on Alban street was the scene of a bloody encounter between two Poles last Friday night.

Both men had been indulging freely in liquor and became engaged in a dispute involving a small amount of money which one claimed the other owed him. To make their arguments more convincing knives were drawn and the two commenced to slash each other in regular dime novel style.
Officer O'Malley arrived at the house
when the battle was at its worst, placing the men under arrest. Their clothes were literally covered with blood but upon examination of their injuries it was learned that neither had been seriously hurt. They were given quarters in the county jail
where they were allowed to remain until Monday when their case came before Judge Walker. One was fined ten dollars or twenty days in jail. He paid the money. The other offender was unable to pay a fine of fifteen dollars and consequently will board with Sheriff Jilson for thirty days.

MANY TEACHERS ARE HERE FOR INSTITUTE

Exact Attendance Is Sixty-Five—
They Manifest Deep Interest
In the Work

Oneida County Teachers' Institute
opened Monday morning at 9 o'clock sharp with over fifty teachers present. That afternoon the attendance increased to sixty five and sixty three have been present daily since. Supt.
W. H. Schulz of Eau Claire and Principal H. B. Wilson of Milwaukee have been live successful conductors
and the teachers have shown much interest in the work.

Contrary to the belief of many, the teachers of Oneida county have nearly all attended some high school one year or more. Only three of the sixty five have had no high school or academy training, and over forty are full high school graduates, some from Tomahawk many more from Minocqua but, of course, the greatest number from Rhinelander. It may be said that the graduates from the smaller high schools make a good showing with the Rhinelander graduates.

Mrs. Stone (nee Ella McKenzie) has kindly taken charge of the music of the institute and done it with her old time enthusiasm and success.

Dr. Richards gave the teachers a talk this morning on germ diseases
which was much enjoyed.

It is useless to say that teachers who are not attendants at the institute are, in many cases, not wide awake, and should be passed aside for those who attend. However, some teachers have been excused because they have already attended a Normal school the full six weeks summer session.

The following is the list of teachers in attendance at the institute the present week:

Ruth Lalande, Laura Holliday,
Katherine Wubker, Paulah Richardson, Luverna Connors, Dora Dessu-reau, Cecile Schlosser, Martha Tegatz, Sarah Swanson, Celia Marsh, Emma Desmore, Louise Juneau, Mary Hub-
ber, Florence Walters, Emma Beyer, Marguerite Macdonald, Oret Anderson, Mae Hagen, Alta Taylor, Elaine Langdon, Cora Hagen, Hazel Carr,
Lillian Moore, Martha Stumpner,
Edna Hagen, Relda Porter, Mayme
Calkins, Myrtle Gibson, Irene Lang-
don, Lillian Clotlier, Myrtle Mc-Laughlin, Lennie Melton, Lillian Sanker, Lottie Quinn, Maude Cowan,
Margaret McCormick, Ruby Jennings,
Eva Emerson, Mildred Smith, Min-
ette McCann, Lizzie Sullivan, Mabel Cannon, Edna Genett, Maude Fisher,
Irene Gilmore, Bernice Porter, Mae
Bonnie, Irene McLaughlin, Ethel Mae
Taylor, Lorena Foss, Georgiana Clorn,
Hedwig Heim, Lillian Buslett, Hazel
Elliott, Stasia Ford, Lizzie Taylor,
Helen Jossart, Guy Fischer, Gale Hub-
ber, Raymond Cannon, Adelaide Hansen, Beatrice Green, Margaret Rice, Marie Lavery.

MANY JOIN FORESTERS

At a recent meeting of the United Order of Foresters lodge of this city
there was admitted into the order a class of thirty-six new members.
Next Saturday evening a class of twenty-four candidates will be initiated. The lodge is growing rapidly and now ranks among the largest fraternal organizations in the city.

ANTIGO WINS BATTLE AFTER TEN INNINGS

Score 3 to 2—Both Teams Play Fast
Ball—Many Rhinelander People
See Game

Antigo 3, Rhinelander 2. Ten Innings. This tells the story of one of the most hotly contested baseball games in which the above teams have participated in for years. It required ten innings of exceptionally hard and fast playing on the part of both teams at Antigo Sunday to bring the battle to a close.

The game opened with Bendt of Rhinelander at the bat. He patiently waited until he received a base on balls. Jastram, the next man, neatly sacrificed him to the second.
Roach followed and made a beautiful
two base hit to left driving Bendt home. O'Melia hit to third and was retired at first, Roach going to third on the play. It was at this stage when Makoney, Antigo's first baseman, hurriedly threw the ball to catch the runner and on this wild throw Roach easily completed the circuit. This gave Rhinelander its only runs of the game for after that Nelson tightened up and pitched masterly ball and with the help of his team mates prevented Rhinelander from scoring for the remainder of the game.

In the third inning Bellis of Antigo hit to third and on a fast play of Jastram's was retired at first. Nelson then drove the ball to right field for a clean hit. Anchutz followed driving a sizzling grounder to O'Melia
at second, who momentarily fumbled the ball, allowing Nelson to cross the pan with Antigo's first run. McIntyre the next man at bat, made a two base hit and arrived home in safety
on an out to Deakin.

The last and deciding run in the tenth inning was made on an excu-sable error by Bendt, a lucky infield hit and a fielder's choice.

The game demonstrated that the two teams are well matched neither having any decided advantage over the other in playing strength. From beginning to end the contest was a pitcher's duel between Nelson, the stockily built Norwegian for Antigo, and St. Johns, Rhinelander's star twirler. The features of the game were a wonderful one handed stop of a terrific ground hit by Deakin from McIntyre's bat retiring the runner at first; a difficult running catch by Sohr in center with a man on second who attempted to run down to third on the play but was retired on a lightning throw to Jastram.
These were easily the distinguishing features of the game along with the cyclonic hitting of Bles who garnered three of the six hits Rhinelander secured.

Many Attend Game.

About one hundred and twenty five Rhinelander people went to Antigo
on the Northwestern train Sunday forenoon to attend the game. The attendance from this city would no doubt have been much larger had the weather here been favorable.
When the train pulled out of the station a heavy rain prevailed discouraging many people who at the last minute decided to remain at home.

The fans were accompanied by the Military band which assisted the Antigo band in furnishing music during the game.

Antigo people made the occasion a regular holiday. Visitors came from all of the neighboring small towns and the crowd that witnessed the game was a record breaker.

The local players and fans speak highly of the treatment accorded them at our sister city. Everything passed off pleasantly with no controversies or expressions of ill feeling. The third game in the series with Antigo will be played in this city Sunday, August 17.

YOUNG PEOPLE WED

Miss Jennie Nelson of this city and Elmer Melton of Sault Ste. Marie were united in marriage by Rev.
Knudson at the Norwegian church
in this city, yesterday afternoon.
Miss Adaline Pecor and Thos. Nixon were witnesses. The young couple will reside at Sault Ste. Marie.

Mr. Melton is employed in the Soo railway train service.

Miss Bessie Kelly of Cumberland is the guest of her sister, Miss Alice Kelly at St. Mary's parsonage.

FALLING ROCK CRUSHES SKULL.

Ed. Hitchings Fatally Hurt While Digging Well at Goodman.

Ed. Hitchings died at St. Mary's hospital in this city, Tuesday night
as the result of injuries received while digging a well at Goodman.

Hitchings was at work thirty feet below the surface of the ground when a large rock fell and struck him on the head. The man's skull was crushed and he did not regain consciousness. In an effort to save his life he was removed to the hospital
here but the doctors could do nothing to help him.

Hitchings was a widower, fifty-five years of age. He has a daughter who resides east on the Soo line. The authorities communicated with her yesterday, but learned that she was not in a position to take charge of the remains. Dr. Stone, who performed an autopsy on the body,
says that it is strange the man survived as long as he did after the accident.

This is the first fatality to occur at Goodman, the new saw mill town.

FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF BUSINESS COLLEGE

Wood Brothers' Institution Has Had Rapid Growth Since It Was Established

One year ago this month there was established in this city the Rhinelander Business College. The institution was founded by Prof. O. E.
Wood, who was later joined by his brother, I. D. Wood, forming the partnership known as Wood Brothers.

When the college first opened its doors the enrollment consisted of only five students. As the time progressed this number gradually kept increasing until to-day the attendance numbers fifty-seven. A very successful summer school for teachers, conducted in connection with the regular college work, has just been closed.
Thirty people took this course. They were mostly young ladies who are now teaching or who desire to teach
during the coming year in the schools of Oneida county.

Considering the age of the Rhinelander College its rapid growth has been phenomenal. It was recently found necessary to double the seating capacity of the school in order to accommodate the large body of students. A few weeks ago three new typewriters were added to the equipment and more machines will be placed in the college in the coming fall.

Students are given a thorough and complete instruction in all branches essential in every day business life.
The studies consist of bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting, grammar, arithmetic, penmanship commercial law etc. A night school is conducted for the benefit of those who are unable to attend the day sessions. The faculty consists of a force of competent instructors who have always at heart the interests of the students.
Individual instructions are given and a lesson is never left until the student has fully mastered it. In one sense this largely contributes to the school's wonderful success.

The management finds no trouble
in securing positions for graduates.

Last spring Wood Brothers acquired the Antigo Business College at Antigo. They enlarged and improved the institution purchasing new furniture and equipment. Within a few weeks the school will be located in its new quarters, a modern brick structure on the leading street of Antigo. The courses of study and tuition rates at this school are the same as those at the Rhinelander Business College.

Messrs. Wood are energetic and enterprising young business men who during their short residence in this city have won the confidence and high esteem of all with whom they have come in contact either in a business or social way. By ceaseless and untiring effort they have placed in this city an educational institution which ranks high among the leading business colleges of the Northwest.

Remember that Bishop Weller of Fond du Lac will preach at St. Augustine's church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

EVER WATCHFUL

A Little Care Will Save Many Rhinelanders Readers Future Trouble. Watch the kidney secretions. See that they have the amber hue of health. The discharges not excessive or infrequent. Contains no "brick-dust like" sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills will do this for you.

They watch the kidneys and cure them when they're sick. Mrs. Fred Abel, living at 325 Deligilse St., Antigo, Wis., says: "I consider Doan's Kidney Pills a good remedy for kidney trouble. I suffered from this complaint for five years, and was unable to get relief. I had pains in the small of my back, the kidneys were very sore and the recreations unnatural. I also had dull headaches and dizzy spells. I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and since using them I have had little or no pain and the kidneys are normal."

Plenty more proof like this from Rhinelanders people. Call at J. J. Reardon's drug store and ask what customers report. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

ECHOES FROM THE DIAMOND

John Schmirler has resigned his place on Ironwood's pitching staff and has signed for the remainder of the season with the fast Chicago West End team. Schmirler at one time appeared in the box for Rhinelanders.

The Union Giants, a fast colored team from Chicago, defeated the Merrill team Sunday by a score of 3 to 2.

Ironwood lost to Bessemer, Sunday. The Ironwood team by the loss of a few of its best players is by no means the strong aggregation that it was earlier in the season. Manager Pallen hopes to secure a game with the Miners, to be played some time this month.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Never Known to Fail.

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since it was first introduced to the public in 1872, and have never found one instance where a cure was not speedily effected by its use. I have been a commercial traveler for eighteen years, and never start out on a trip without this, my faithful friend," says H. S. Nichols of Oakland, Ind. Ter. For sale by F. L. Hinman & Co.

MEN GO TO NEOPIIT

Many woodsmen have lately left this city for Neopit where they will cut timber on the government Indian reservation.

In hiring men the government insists that they must accept the conditions that no intoxicating liquors are tolerated, which will thereby guarantee to the men a good chance to save their money.

The government is paying from $23 to $35 a month and board to woodsmen; $23 to $30 for shovelmen; $1.75 a day for yard men; $2 for lumber pilers and $2.50 for lumber jacks. Board costs $4 a week to men employed by the day.

BERG IS RE-APPOINTED

Martin Berg has been re-appointed to the office of game warden in Oneida county. Mr. Berg has served in this capacity for several years and is an efficient official.

WEATHER FOR AUGUST

Rev. Hicks Predicts Many Storms For this Month.

In his storm and weather forecast for August, Rev. Irl R. Hicks says that a "reactionary storm period" is central on July 31st, and August 1st, so that threatening weather conditions will prevail at that time. Decided thunder gusts may be looked for.

A regular storm period is central on the 6th, covering from the 2nd to the 8th. Marked midsummer storms will appear from the 3rd to the 5th, bringing severe thunder storms and violent gusts of wind. A reactionary storm period is central on the 11th and 12th. Storm producing causes will be at a minimum at this period, with indications of sustained high temperature. A regular storm period is central on the 18th, extending from the 15th to the 20th.

The climax in summer heat will be reached about the 15th. A low barometer at this time will indicate danger. Ominous storm clouds with high temperature, humid air and low barometer will be a warning that should not go unheeded. A reactionary storm period is central on the 23rd, 24th, and 25th. At this period the barometer will fall again, the temperature will rise and threatening conditions will increase into summer storms. A regular storm period covers the last six days of August.

THREE DROWN AT MERRILL

Victims Are Well Known To Many Rhinelanders People.

John Amet, Henry Sabatka and Arthur Oller were drowned near what is called the upper dam at Merrill last Thursday afternoon. There were five men on a raft of "dead heads" when the raft struck a whirlpool and sank.

Fred Zimmerman, one of the men on the raft swam to shore. Lawrence Amet, another on the raft, hung to the float, but John Amet and Henry Sabatka sank after struggling in the water a few minutes. Arthur Oller floated down the river, swam and treaded water for about 200 yards and had come within ten feet of some workmen in a boat, when he sank.

The body of John Amet was recovered in about half an hour and the physicians worked over him for a long time but life was extinct.

Sabatka leaves a wife and three children. Amet and Oller were not married. The victims were well known to many residents of Rhinelanders.

Intense Colicky Pains Relieved

"For some years I suffered from intense colicky pains which would come on at times and from which I could find no relief," says I. S. Mason, of Beaver Dam, Ky. "Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended to me by a friend. After taking a few doses of the remedy I was entirely relieved. That was four years ago and there has been no return of the symptoms since that time." This remedy is for sale by F. L. Hinman & Co.

NEW RULING ON BOUNTIES

For the purpose of helping town and county officers in determining whether animal bounty claims submitted to them are genuine, Secretary of State J. A. Frear has caused to be printed on bounty certificates scientific descriptions of wolves and foxes. The descriptions are regarded as so simple and so clear that there will be little room for fraud in the future.

The size, color, and distinctive marks of the animals are given and the officers are warned not to issue certificates entitling claimants to bounties unless they are convinced that the animals are what they are represented to be.

The bounty for a grown wolf is $20 and for a cub $16, the county paying half and the state the other half. Last year the state paid $24,000 in bounty claims and the different counties an equal amount. Chief Clerk Louis B. Nagler of the secretary of state's department, who audits the bounty claims, believes the new certificates will considerably reduce the amount of money paid out.

Cured Hay Fever And Summer Cold

A. S. Naustbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year, I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to aggravate it. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar. It quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success."

President Taft has consented to visit LaCrosse and several other Wisconsin cities this month. Wouldn't it be nice to have a real live President come to Rhinelander?

This is home coming week at Milwaukee and thousands of that city's former residents are participating in the festivities. Many of these people who drifted from Milwaukee when it was nothing more than a good sized village return today to find it the metropolis of the state and one of the greatest cities in the Union.

Members of the grand jury in examining the books from the town of Sugar Camp, where E. W. Knapp is chairman, found that they were a model for other towns to pattern after. This town came up before the grand jury for investigation but that body found it impossible to make any complaints regarding the manner in which affairs there have been conducted. This speaks well for the honesty and ability of the town officials in conducting their affairs.

From all parts of the nation comes the report that times are gradually improving and the prospects are encouraging for a prosperous fall. In the west the grain crop has never been better and farmers are offering almost fabulous wages for labor to assist in the harvest. Men of money are beginning to relax their purse strings and make investments without fear for the future. Manufacturing institutions are increasing their forces and in the big cities the ranks of the bread lines are rapidly thinning out. The sour faced individual, who stood on the street corners a few months ago and told how the country was going to ruin, could not be found now with a search warrant. At the present time the man who wants to work, can find no fault with the U. S. A.

The superintendency of Chicago's great school system has fallen into the hands of a woman for the first time in its history.

Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, principal of the Chicago Normal school since 1895 and an educator of national reputation, was chosen Thursday night by the newly organized board of education to head the public schools.

Mrs. Young's selection followed a struggle for the office which has been going on since the resignation of Edwin G. Cooley, several months ago. At one time the question of Mr. Cooley's successor appeared to foreshadow a split in the membership of the board that could not be healed. Many educators from other cities have been urged by their friends for the position, but the board decided to appoint a Chicago man or woman.

The tariff tinkering is practically at an end. And what have the people as a result, practically nothing? After nearly four months juggling at Washington the promised revision downward in behalf of the masses is a matter of imagination and not reality. A few of the articles is reduced but not in such a way that the consumer will get anything out of it. The great trusts, largely of the East, will be able to purchase their raw material a little cheaper but does it mean that they will sell their product cheaper—by no means. They will keep up their trust prices and make still more on their articles. While the masses have not won it is not all discouragement. President Taft has forced the issue on several articles and had his way so far. The insurgents have shown the people of the country that a large number of the congressmen is subservient to the trusts or have weak knees which is little better. Instead of a single republican senator standing alone against the rest of his party for right, a whole group of senators from the middle west like Dilliver, Cummins, Nelson, Clapp, Buston, Beverage and LaFollette have stood together and fought the battle bravely.

On the whole there is much to encourage the people. The senators, principally, have enlightened them so they will know whom to leave at home in future elections. The debates at Washington have brought out many facts and educated the entire country.

TARIFF REPORT ADOPTED

Cooper, Kusterman, Morse and Davidson Vote to Adopt Measure

Washington, July 31 The Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, amended in conference and approved by President Taft, passed the house last Saturday by a majority of twelve votes. The total vote was 195 to 183. Nineteen Republicans voted against the bill and two Democrats for it. Three Wisconsin members voted with the democrats against the bill—Cary, Lenroot and Nelson.

The insurgents whose votes with the organization on the critical roll call won the victory for the organization were Cooper of Wisconsin, Hinshaw and Kinkaid of Nebraska and Morse of Wisconsin. On the real test vote on Mr. Payne's motion to recommit the vote was: Ayes 193, noes, 191. A change of three votes would have recommitted the bill to the committee. If these four insurgents had voted with the twenty-one Republicans and the Democrats the bill would have been recommitted.

INSURGENTS GO TO PIECES Then came the vote on the motion to adopt the conference report. Here the insurgents went to pieces still worse. Republicans who voted to adopt the conference report included the following insurgents; Cooper, Esch, Good, Hinshaw, Kinkaid, Kopp, Kuesterman, Madison, Morse, Morris and Pickett.

Those insurgents who stood out to the end and voted against the conference report on this vote were: Cary, Davis, Gronna, Haugen, Hubbard of Iowa, Keifer of Ohio, Kendall, Lenroot, Lindbergh, Mann, Miller of Minnesota, Mudock, Nelson, Nye, Polindexter, Southwick, Steener, Stevens of Minnesota, Volstad and Woods.

The house organization won the closest fight of the entire insurgent fight by reason of losses from their own ranks of men.

Various reasons are given by the men who went with the regulars at this crisis.

HERE IN EARLY DAYS.

J. G. Clark, vice-president of the Oshkosh Clothing Manufacturing Co., was in the city, Tuesday. Mr. Clark was financially interested in one of the first lumber concerns to build a saw mill in Rhinelander—A Conro & Co. At that time the place was scarcely more than a railroad flag station, but Mr. Clark like others saw a great future for the town. At one time he was heavily interested in timber holdings in this county. He was one of the first subscribers to the New North entering his name on the list when the paper was established here over twenty seven years ago.

JACOBSON'S

RUSSELL LEADS IN SHOOT.

Co. L. Man Making Fine Shooting at Camp Douglas Range.

Private Russell of Company L of this city is doing some fine shooting at the Wisconsin National Guard rifle shoot at Camp Douglas this week. Twice has Russell headed the list at range fire. On Tuesday he made a record of 313 out of a possible score of 350. His nearest competitor was Zass with a record of 317.

A trophy is being offered by the militia companies of the state to the marksman making the best score. Russell is no doubt endeavoring to win this prize and his comrades in Company L earnestly hope that he will be successful. He is a crack sharpshooter and has won high honors in previous contests. In a mention of the competition at Camp Douglas the Milwaukee Sentinel contained the following:

The greatest shooting is the consistent work of Private Russell who again lowered the tag, this being the second time this week.

LEANDER CHOATE IMPROVING

He Will Recover From Injuries Received in Runaway.

The many friends in Rhinelander of Leander Choate, former president and now vice-president of the First National Bank of this city, will be gratified to learn that he will recover from the injuries which he received in a runaway at Oshkosh last Tuesday. It was at first believed that owing to Mr. Choate's advanced age that his injuries would result fatally but late reports state that he is slowly improving.

The particulars of the accident as received in Rhinelander are as follows: Mr. Choate was watering his horse at a street trough when the animal became frightened and ran away. The old gentleman attempted to jump out of the carriage and fell. His right shoulder was dislocated, his nose broken and his face badly scratched and bruised. It was at first believed that he may have sustained a concussion of the brain or fracture of the skull, the symptoms of which may not appear at once.

Mr. Choate is one of the oldest and most prominent residents of Oshkosh having resided there since 1857.

NO LICENSE FOR ZINDA

Owing to the law governing the granting of liquor licenses, the city council at its regular meeting Tuesday evening, was unable to take action on the application for a saloon license made by Frank Zinda. The law is to the effect that when an applicant for such license has once been rejected he cannot again be granted a license until the expiration of that license year. Zinda was refused a license at the previous council meeting on July 6.

ORE CAR JUMPS TRACK

FACTS ABOUT MOTHER EARTH.

Points of Interest Concerning This Wonderful Globe, as Vouched for by Scientists.

Our dear old earth which seems immovable and solid as we go about our daily work or travel over its furrowed surface, is yet spinning, and rolling, and swaying in complex but orderly motion. Its axial rotation gives us day and night. Its circuit round the sun brings the seasons and the year. The circling of the poles produces the procession of the equinoxes. The planets perturb in its courses. The plain of its orbit sways up and down, and its perihelion is slowly shifted. The moon swings it around a center of gravity common to both, while the sun and all our system speeds onward to some far distant goal. And if the bright star in the Taurus is the central point round which this vast orbit sweeps then Alcyon is the center of the universe for us.

As far as astronomers can judge this motion through the vast abyss of interstellar space is at the rate of about a million miles a day, and it is in the direction of the constellation Hercules. The motion through space is believed to be away from Argus and toward Hercules. Some have thought that Alcyon in the Pleiades is somewhere near the center of the vast circuit swept over by the sun and his attendant worlds. If this is true, that beautiful star as it silently twinkles in the constellation Taurus becomes of surpassing interest to mankind.

JUST A MATTER OF INQUIRY.

Why Should People Entertain or Be Entertained When It Gives Them No Pleasure?

"In a periodical the other day," says the amateur philosopher of the Providence Tribune, "I ran across a picture of what had evidently been a musical entertainment or musicale—I took it to have been a musicale for choice.

The fiddlers had gone and so had the soloist or soloists and guests. There remained in the foreground the deserted room and a waste of empty chairs, along with the open grand piano.

The host's head was resting on his arms on a table; the hostess had removed her shoes and was on the verge of collapse. In the background a butler was looking on commiseratingly.

"Now, there's a good deal of that sort of thing first and last the country over. It was true to life, but I never could understand it. That is, nobody has ever explained to me why people who don't enjoy entertaining or being entertained persist in making martyrs of themselves; why anybody does something for pleasure that invariably gives pain?

"A person who puts himself out and wears himself out in the line of duty is comprehensible, but why you should sacrifice yourself when you're pretending to be looking for fun is beyond me.

"The woman who said that her idea of a perfect life from the social point of view would be to be asked everywhere and to go nowhere doubtless expressed the sentiment of thousands, but why go anywhere if you feel that way?"

A Deal That Fell Through.

"Baron Fewcass was rather exacting as to the dot."

"That wasn't what broke the engagement," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I don't object to seeing a young man look out for his interests. But when he applied for a cash advance in order to buy an engagement ring, I must say it struck me as unbusinesslike."

THEORIST IN DEEP TROUBLE.

He Cannot Understand Why Things Disappear When They Are Not in Constant Use.

"Did you ever notice," asked the theorist, "how a thing will disappear if you don't use it for awhile? Leave it around your room for awhile and it will vanish."

"Easy enough," said the practical man. "The servant sweeps it into the wastebasket."

"Not at all," said the theorist. "Try the experiment of having two of anything and use one, and the other will disappear. I mislaid my pocketknife a few weeks ago and bought another. I found my old one that night and carried both in my pocket for awhile, always using the new one. In the course of time the old one vanished—vanished magically from my pocket."

"You dropped it," said the practical man.

"Why didn't I drop the new one?" asked the theorist. "And why is it always that way? I had a new key made for my office desk, under the impression that there was something wrong with the old one. There wasn't. I carried both of them on a ring. After awhile the old one, which I didn't use, vanished off the key ring."

"At home I use an eyeshade for reading at night. I had two, one light and one heavy. Lately I have been using the heavy one alone, keeping the light one in a drawer. To-day I opened the drawer and found the light one gone. Do you think the maid opened the drawer so as to find something to sequester for the wastebasket?"

"Bosh!" said the practical man.

"Try it," said the theorist.

BLOSSOMS THAT DO NOT MIX

Florist Tells of a Few Things He Has Learned in His Business of Handling Flowers.

The florist frowned as he took up an order for a table decoration. "That will never do," he muttered. After calling up the customer and suggesting a change, he told his new clerk a few things.

"You must never take an order that calls for a mixture of mignonette and roses," he said. "A centerpiece of those two flowers wouldn't last half through the luncheon. They simply wilt one another. I don't know why, but they can't get along together."

"It is true of many flowers. Pansies, for instance, last twice as long as if they are not combined with any other flower, and the same may be said of violets. Jonquils and daffodils, on the other hand, seem to get a new lease of life if you combine considerable green with them. Carnations will go all to pieces if you combine them with roses, although the roses do not seem to be affected."

"It is more striking in combinations of green with flowers. If you try to use an entirely different type of foliage from what the flower is used to, it won't last so long. So I never put feathery foliage with lilies of the valley, for you know its natural foliage is a thick leaf. I never use thick leaves with carnations, for their foliage is of the feathery type. It isn't as though the flowers fought, but they seem to grieve at being misunderstood."

Well Named.

"What's that you call your mule?" "I call him 'Corporation,'" answered the old colored man.

"How did you come to give him such a name?"

"Fum 'studin' de animal an' readin' de papers. 'Dat mule gits mo' blame an' abuse dan anything else in de township, an' goes ahead havin' his own way, 'jest de same.'—Washington Star."

VARIETIES OF CORN FLOWER.

Three Hundred and Fifty Different Specimens in Existence, According to Botanists.

Germany adopted the corn flower as a national institution many years ago, the adoption coming about merely by way of a popular choice. It is a common flower all over Europe, but rather more prolific in Germany than in any other of the countries graced by it.

Botanists tell us that there are no less than 350 varieties of the corn flower to be found, but the plant that is found in profusion in the realms of the taller is said to be the most beautiful of all. The Germans admire it for the richness of its wreath-like circle of outer florets and the splendor of its deep azure tints as it opens to the sun.

At one time German scientists attributed certain medicinal properties to the corn flower, and its blue blossoms were used also to some extent in domestic dyeing, but latterly these properties are not so much credited to it.

Although Germany lays claim to the finest of the species, America may boast also of some beautiful specimens of the corn flower. It is said to have been brought to this country first in the ballast of ships in the days antedating the modern ocean liner, which carries only water ballast. In this country it is variously known as the Bachelor's Button, Corn Bottle, Witches' Belles or Thimbles, Blue Bonnet, and Blue Poppy.

ONLY USED SAFETY MATCHES.

Tender-Hearted Man Explains Why He Has Given Up the Other Kind.

"I never carry any but safety matches," said the orator in the red, white and blue vest. "It's a matter of conscience with me."

"Why so?" inquired the drum major.

"Because," said the orator, "when the world uses safety matches exclusively, phossy jaw will disappear. You know what phossy jaw is? It's the rotting away of the jawbone, as horrible an ill as leprosy, that is contracted by the workers—poor devils—in factories where strike-anywhere matches are made. Phossy jaw comes from white phosphorus. White phosphorus is the base of strike-anywhere matches, but in safeties there's not a grain of it, and so in safety-match factories phossy jaw is unknown."

"It always seems to me," concluded the orator, "when I scratch a strike-anywhere match, that I am helping to give some poor girl or boy worker phossy jaw. But when I scratch a safety, then I feel like Flaxner in his Rockefeller Institute or Metchnikoff in his laboratory—I am helping to rid the world of disease."

An Honest Boy Rewarded.

Honesty is appreciated—even among politicians. During a recent political convention in North Carolina a newspaper named Cicero Alexander sold a paper to a delegate who gave him a dollar and was to wait for his change. The boy on returning, could not find his customer and began to cry. The chairman of the convention, impressed by his honesty, announced the matter before the whole assemblage—the result being not only that the man who had the change coming to him let the boy have it, but a collection of $19.35 was taken up for him by the delegates. Some one shouted that the youngster should be made state treasurer, and by unanimous vote the convention recommended him for chief page in the legislature.—Exchange.

Geo. Baites, an old hotel man of Middleton, this state, has purchased from Quandt & Kelly the Hotel Fuller in this city.

As soon as the deal took place Wm. F. Kelly, who for the last year has been proprietor of the Fuller, leased the hotel from Mr. Baites for an extended period. A number of improvements will be made about the building including a new steam heating plant which is now being put in place.

He is a hotel man of many years experience and it is always his aim to please and satisfy. Like ye hosts of old he possesses the happy faculty of making his guests feel perfectly at home and overlooks nothing that might add to their enjoyment and comfort.

BETZVILLE TALES

Will Finch and the Belgian Lapdog

By Ellis Parker Butler
Author of "Pigs is Pigs" Etc.
ILLUSTRATED BY PETER NEWELL

Will Finch gives notice to every body in Betzville that the party that stole his Belgian lap-dog is known to him, and that unless the dog is returned before next Wednesday noon he will offer $5 reward for any information leading to the identification of the thief.

Will is all broken up over the loss of the dog. He paid a dollar for it to a passing tramp who swore he had stolen the pup, or he couldn't afford to sell it for the price. The tramp said the pup was a Belgian lap-dog, and to prove it offered to let Will see it lap up milk. If Will would furnish the milk, he said he had just returned from a pedestrian tour of Mexico, passing through Belgium on his way to Betzville. Will sort of suggested that a lap-dog wasn't one that lapped, but one that is small enough to sit in a lap, and the tramp fell right in with the notion. He told Will that was what made the Belgian lap-dogs so valuable, they were both kinds of lappers.

Will doesn't often spend money, and when he does he likes to get his foundland, and yet he hated to think that he had paid good money for a lap-dog that couldn't be lapped. It was like wasting the money. First he thought he would write to New York and get in communication with an agency that handled Human Curiosities; he thought he might be able to find a Human Curiosity that ran mostly to lap, but he hesitated. He could not be sure the Belgian lap-dog had stopped growing, and he hated to go to the expense of marrying a Human Curiosity only to have her lap soon outgrown. So he moped around, and got thinner and thinner, and worried himself nearly to death, but there didn't seem to be any way in which he could get value received for the dollar he had spent for the lap-dog.

Then, just when he had reached the lowest depths of worry, Uncle Ashod Clute suggested something that cheered Will up again and made him as happy as of yore, and the next thing we knew Will was packing his goods in boxes and laying in time-tables. And the funny thing, so he

The purple martin, both during its northern and southern sojourns, is one of the most valuable birds from the standpoint of the service which it renders the farmer and gardener. During the winter in its southern home it wages war on a great variety of injurious insects, including the big cotton boll weevil beetle, which works such havoc on the cotton plantations. On its arrival in the northern states in the latter part of April or early May the martin continues its beneficent work of insect destruction. It is an inoffensive bird, of most interesting habits and on every account should be provided with nesting places and protected in every possible way.

The live officials of a national bank in a progressive western town are this season offering a series of cash prizes to the landowners living within a radius of fifteen or twenty miles for the stretches of road of a mile or more in length leading to the town which are kept in the best condition during the season. Judges who have been appointed are to inspect the roads at intervals, and at the end of the period prescribed the awards will be made. The best piece of highway will fetch its owner $100 and the second and third best smaller but substantial amounts. In towns where there is no bank whose officials are disposed to be thus alert it would result in dollars for the municipality if the city councils would offer such prizes.

Further study into the habits of birds leads to the generally accepted view that if there is any one who ought to be their firm friend it is the farmer and gardener, who is especially indebted to them for keeping in reasonable check the myriad insect enemies of his growing crops. On this account he should arrange to reserve somewhere about the place, along the road in front of the house or in the corner of the pasture or wood lot, a plum or shrub thicket where the birds may nest and make headquarters for the season. Many a farm does not have as many birds about as it might simply through lack of convenient nesting places. This bird business is coming to be a dollars and cents proposition, and every husbandman can well afford to give it serious thought.

Woman Suffrage.

"George, have you any influence with the election board?"

"Perhaps."

"Well, I want you to see them right away and tell them that they must be careful and not let election day come on our washday, or our baking day, or our sweeping day, or my bridge whist day, because if they do I certainly won't have time to vote."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Insult to Injury.

Cholly—I was walking down the avenue, dear boy, when a common woman allowed her beastly flowerpot to fall on me head. Beggy—How painful! Cholly—It wasn't the pain, dear boy. It was what the dreadful woman said. Beggy—What did she say? Cholly—Said she with glad her flowerpot landed on a soft place and didn't break.—Chicago News.

Blessing Cheap.

There was an elopement a short time ago from a Bolton suburb, and after a brief honeymoon the bride returned to the parental roof.

"And you will give us your blessing?" she asked.

"Freely," replied the old man. "No trouble about the blessing, but board and lodging will be at regular rates."—London Tit-Bits.

Uncle Caleb—Have you named your dog yet, Clarence?

Little Clarence—Yes, sir; I called him after you.

Uncle Caleb—That isn't very complimentary.

Little Clarence—Oh, well, he hasn't got sense enough to care.—Exchange.

"As free as a bird in the air," we say. Now, of all the birds of the air the eagle is king and, therefore, of all birds he is the freest. This fact, coupled with the eagle's independence, self reliance and unconquerable courage, caused it to be chosen as the emblem of our republic.

The small child had been silent for half an hour, and her anxious mamma at last found her with an alarm clock tied to her foot.

"What mischief are you up to now, darling?" she inquired.

"Foot's asleep, and I want to waken it," was the reply.

As a good old pastor came down from the pulpit one Sunday morning the sexton said:

"Your prayer for rain was soon answered, sir. It's pouring."

"Dear me, I hope not," muttered the pastor. "I came away this morning without an umbrella."

"And it's awfully impolite to interrupt one who is talking, isn't it, mother?"

"Except when a woman is describing clothes, my dear, and then it is polite to constantly ejaculate, 'How lovely!' or 'How ridiculous!' as the case may be."—Kansas City Times.

Book Agent—Madam, here is an admirable work I have on how to manage servants.

Housewife—Don't want it. You can't get any help to manage.

Book Agent—Then, madam, here is a still better series on self help.—Baltimore American.

He—Well, if you want to know it, I married you for your money.

She—I wish I could tell as easily what I married you for.

Tom (quoting Hamlet)—If thou wilt needs marry, marry a fool.

Maudie—Oh, Tom, this is so sudden!

—London Mail.

Lack of Judgment.

"So Cayuse Charley met his fate at the hands of a posse?" "Yep," answered Three-finger Sam. "What was the trouble?" "His (innocent) difficulty was a lack of judgment as to speed."

He helped himself to a horse, but didn't pick one that was fast enough to keep ahead of the party as was aptly him."

The Dog Was as Big as a Newfoundland by That Time.

money's worth, and as soon as he paid for the dog he took it home and began lapping it, as you might say. He sat down in a chair and put the dog on his lap, but Will is so bow-legged that the dog fell right through his lap onto the floor. He tried it eight or ten times, and then he decided he didn't have the right kind of a lap to hold a dog on, but he was not going to waste a dog that he had paid a good dollar for, and the only thing he could see to do was to get a lap that would hold the dog properly, and the more he thought about it the more sure he became that what he needed was a female lap with a skirt, so the dog couldn't fall through. So he thought it over well, and he decided that Miss Daisy Plunkett would do. She was a small-sized person, and about right to hold a small lap-dog.

Will Finch found right then that it takes longer to get a female lap into the family than to buy a lap-dog, but he was thoroughly aroused about it, and he went right to work courting Daisy, and he had just got to the point where he was ready to propose when he happened to look at the dog carefully, and he was all taken aback. The dog had grown a lot, and was as big as a good-sized coach dog. Will saw immediately that Daisy Plunkett wouldn't do at all—she didn't have nearly enough lap to hold such a large lap-dog.

So Will went about town for a week or two studying the height and breadth of all the unmarried ladies of our burg, and at last he decided that Sally Ann Scroggs was about the rangiest limbed he could find, and that she would fit the dog pretty well, and he started in to court her for all he was worth, and by and by she began to incline his way a little, and he was just on the point of proposing when he happened to study the dog again, and he saw right off that Sally Ann wouldn't do. The dog was as big as a Newfoundland by that time.

Well, Will was nearly broken up over it. He couldn't think of a lap in all Betzville that would be big enough to hold a lap-dog the size of a New-

The Resourcefulness of Sue

Sue was a typewriter and Ethelinda sold lovely laces in a big shop. They lived in an apartment that had plenty of closet room—five rooms and bath, to be exact. Sue usually stopped on the way home and bought two lamb chops and a head of lettuce, if it was the beginning of the week, or five cents' worth of stew meat and no lettuce, if it was toward the tag end of the week, near pay day. Sue was generally the one to negotiate the purchases because she left the office at five and came up town on an express train, while Ethelinda's shop didn't close until six.

Now, upon a certain evening they had invited Marie and Ralph to dine with them. They could say "dine," because they intended to turn in the necks of their shirt waists and wear their near-Brussels lace collars and because Marie was going to bring over her finger bowls. It behooved Sue to shut up her typewriter on the very stroke of five, therefore, even if the manager passed her the glance frappee, and make all possible speed to the express train.

She had the list of dinner items complete. Chops, bread, lettuce (oh, this was Monday evening), corn on the ear, a meringue pie and some berries for desert. She looked like the Goddess of Plenty as she reached the door of the flat house.

She had to put down the chops, the bread and the lettuce on the floor of the vestibule while she dug in her bag for the keys.

Keys? Keys? Here was her pen-knife, her handkerchief, a pencil, three hairpins, some chewing gum, a powder puff, a nail file, a mirror and her list of dinner supplies—but no keys. Clearly she must have left them at the office in her hurry. Now, here was indeed a pretty how-de-do!

Ethelinda wasn't due for an hour, the guests were apt to come along any minute, and she had ordered the grocer to send around the four bottles of "ice cold" right straight away, and now she couldn't even get in to open the dumbwaiter door.

It was comparatively easy to collect the pie, the chops, the bread, the lettuce and the berries and go down through the cellar and up the four flights of stairs to her apartment door. But then what? She sat down on the stairs and thought some more. There were two flats on a floor. She could ring the bell of the next-door lady and beg to be let climb out her kitchen window, across the fire escape and into her own kitchen window. Fine! Whereupon she rang. No answer. Lady away. Lovely! Now what? And time was flying. There was but one other way. The flat just over theirs was vacant. She might get into that if the door was open, go out the kitchen window, and down the fire escape to her own.

She carefully deposited the chops, the berries, the corn, the lettuce, the pie and the bread upon the floor and started upstairs. The door of the empty flat was unlocked. Ah, joy! She rushed to the kitchen window and gazed down through the fretwork of the fire-escape to the street. My! It was a long drop if she slipped. Furthermore, the ladder was a rusty old thing, and as the flat house was at the corner of the block, the fire escape hung to the outer wall of the building. The openings in the iron platforms at each floor were right over each other, and offered a clear drop, if anything happened, straight to the areaway. She hoped she'd fall nice and plumb into the area, and not out on the sidewalk, where everybody passing by would have to see her all mused up.

She stepped forth courageously, desperately, and put her foot on the iron ladder. It seemed firm. She tried not to look down in the street, but she couldn't help noticing a man driving a sprinkling cart. He gazed up in her direction and shouted, pleasantly: "Oh, I say, Maude, the water's fine. Drop in!"

Two small boys playing ball in the street yelled at a companion a block away: "Hey, Chimmie, hurry up! Pipe de lady burglar!"

"Oh, you blue stockings!" remarked a college youth from across the way. And two men who were repairing the street stopped their steam roller and called out: "Don't jump! We'll save you!"

The ladies in the tenement opposite nearly fell out of their respective windows in their enthusiasm over the unusual spectacle. The grocery boy from the corner store dropped a barrel of potatoes on the grocer's foot, the driver of a delivery wagon paused with his parcels slipping from his arms—and all because a desperate young person was descending a fire escape. It seemed to Sue to take an hour at least to get to the platform outside her own kitchen window. Her hands and dress were red with rust, and her hat was on one ear. She ducked hastily into the open kitchen window with a triumphant cry—into the arms of the amazed Ethelinda.

"Sue!"

"Ethelinda!"

"You frightened me nearly to death! What on earth—"

"I'm not on earth, I'm in the air. What are you doing home at this hour, Ethelinda?"

"Why, the store has begun closing at five. I thought I'd hurry home and help you get dinner."

Face Was Absolutely Strange

The train was whistling for a stop, and was going to stop not more than a mile or two away.

Instinctively I felt for my watch, but there was nothing of the sort in my pocket. I was disappointed, for though only half conscious of the reason why, I wanted to know what time the train came in. Suddenly an expedient occurred to me. The sun was slanting through my windows at an acute angle with the casement. With my thumb nail I scratched on the sill the outline of the shadow.

Some one was standing outside my door, watching me, no doubt, through the keyhole. An involuntary movement of his feet betrayed so much to me, and a moment later, restless of espionage, I crossed over to the farther corner of the room.

In doing so I caught a glimpse of another movement, and looking up I saw what I wonder I had not thought of looking for earlier—a mirror. The sight of it made my heart beat quickly.

"Of course," I thought, "that is all it needs. A glance at myself will bring my memory back to me."

I walked around and stood before the glass. But the face I saw was absolutely strange to me, as strange as the doctor's face or the guard's had been. It was bewildering, uncanny, almost enough indeed to drive a man mad, to see the haggard look of pain and disappointment and something not far from terror in that stranger's face; and to realize that it was only the irrepressible emotion of my own soul that I saw reflected there.

Then, like a touch of the spur, rallying all my courage anew, there came the faint sound of a chuckling laugh from the other side of the door. In standing before the mirror I had again come under the observation of the man at the keyhole. The same bewildered, disappointed face which I had seen, he had seen, too.

I dropped down on the edge of my bed and buried my face in my hands. I heard footsteps tiptoeing away from my door, and then in a moment, as I half expected, returning noisily.

"Come in," said I, in answer to the knock.

It was the doctor, but this time the doctor with his manner all prepared. It was at once good humored and patronizing.

"Well, my good man," said he, "I hope you feel no further ill effects from that warm June sun."

"No," said I, "I guess I'm right enough."

Then, by way of experiment, I shot a quick question at him.

"Is this my room, the room I have lived in right along?"

His face seemed to stiffen a little in its false mask of kindly humor.

"Of course," he said; "but you must not expect to remember anything about that. You have been, as I said before, only half conscious since you came here. It would be altogether extraordinary if you were to recognize the room or the building or any of our faces. But does nothing come back from beyond that time; nothing that happened before your accident?"

"I shook my head dully.

"What did you tell me I was?" I asked.—From O. Cabot's "Man Without a Shadow."—(Appleton's.)

Sleepwalker Close to Death.
Dreaming that there were burglars in the house, Miss Nellie, daughter of School Director Ellisha Moore of Upland, Pa., got up and after divesting her bed of the coverings, removed a number of household articles from the room. Mr. Moore, awakened by the noise, concluded that the "We are coming" gang had arrived, and arming himself with a revolver, proceeded to investigate. He mistook his daughter, who was walking through the hallway, for a burglar, and was about to shoot, after warning the supposed intruder to stop, when Miss Moore awoke and shouted: "Don't shoot, father! It is only me." Another second's silence and she would have been a dead woman.

Smoke Waste.

A competent authority calculates the direct physical loss to this country through the emission of smut smoke from chimneys at $100,000,000 a year.

EDWARD BRUSH IS KILLED

Popular Railroad Man Victim of Sad Accident in Antigo Yards.

Late last Thursday night Robert Brush of this city received the sad news that his nephew, Edward Brush, a well known railroad man, had been killed while switching in the Antigo yards.

The unfortunate man was in the act of uncoupling a car when the accident occurred. Through some manner his foot caught and he was unable to free himself before the trucks of one car had passed over his body. Both legs were severed. He was immediately conveyed to a hospital but his injuries were such that the physicians could do nothing to save his life. He passed away after two hours of suffering.

Mr. Brush was about twenty-five years of age and had been employed in the Antigo railroad yards for several years. Among his fellow employees he was popular and held in high esteem. In Rhineland he had a wide circle of friends having frequently visited here. His shocking and untimely death is deeply felt.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brush, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Schellenger and Miss Ruby Morrison attended the funeral which was held at Antigo, Sunday afternoon.

IS NEED FOR DEFINITE RULE.

Writer in Woman's Publication Deplores Custom of Indiscriminate Gift Giving.

Just how much are the parents responsible for the indiscriminate giving of presents between boys and girls? Of course, certain rules of etiquette obtain in certain classes, of society, but there is a mass outside, in the country and small towns, who are not governed by the rules laid down by Madam Grundy. There seems to be a tendency toward expensive gifts among the young people of today. Should a young girl be allowed by her parents to accept gifts other than candy, flowers, music and books from her boy friends? The question often comes up in the homes when some boy, all in good faith, gives the girl friend a bit of expensive jewelry. Some mothers, at once, compel the girl to return the gift and that ends the friendship and causes an embarrassing situation. Of course, there are girls, without conscience or that innate refinement which every good wholesome girl possesses, who just go with a boy for the sake of the gifts lavished upon her.

Now, does the responsibility of indiscriminate giving rest with the parents of the boy or the girl? If the boy was trained by his mother not to offer expensive presents to the girls until Miss Right comes along, it would save many a heartache. If the girl has been properly instructed, could not she, in an unobtrusive way, give the boy to understand that such gifts were not desirable? Indiscriminate giving between boys and girls often causes an innocent friendship to degenerate into markish sentimentalism.—The Housekeeper.

MUSICIAN A MASTER OF WIT.

Biography of Edward MacDowell Relates Some Examples of the Master's Caustic Humor.

In a biography of Edward MacDowell by Lawrence Gilman, the writer quotes some of the famous musician's witticisms. On one occasion he had been told of a performance of his composition, "To a Wild Rose," played by a high-school girl on a high-school piano at a high-school graduation festival. "Well," MacDowell remarked, "I suppose she pulled it up by the roots!"

Some one sent him about this time, relates Mr. Humiston, a program of an organ recital at which this same "Wild Rose" was to be played.

"He was not pleased with the idea, thinking doubtless of a style of performance which plays Schumann's 'Träumerei' on the great organ diapasons." He remarked simply that it reminded him of a hippopotamus wearing a clover leaf in his mouth."

A member of one of his classes at Columbia, finding more unoccupied space on the page of his book, after finishing the exercise, filled up the vacancy with rests. When his book was returned the page was covered with corrections—all except these bars of rests, which were inclosed in a red line and marked:

"This is the only correct passage in the exercise."—Youth's Companion.

Versatile Destiny.

A man becomes a fan and soon loses his hearth and home. Another yearns to shuffle off this mortal coil and gets kicked into a prison cell by his hasty father. Another learns to his surprise, as thousands have learned before him in various ways, that there are all kinds of unsuspected dangers in sitting on a sofa with a young woman.

A wife may spring a divorce, a father may take a sudden notion to kick or spank, and lightning may yank an innocent young man away from his girl and make dents in the ceiling with him.

Destiny is a surprisingly versatile thing, with a million and one ways of knocking human plans galley-west.

Burnt Noses

They Play a Conspicuous Part in the Game of Love.

"Your nose looks like a bologna sausage," she said with the cruel frankness of a close friend.

"Why shouldn't it?" he answered defiantly. "I've been on the links all day."

Then she laughed, leaving him uncertain whether she was laughing at his nose or his joke.

Uncertainty is a painful emotion, especially when it is a question why one is being laughed at. He felt depressed, melancholy. He had meant to boast of having made the 18 holes in 76. He had expected to be congratulated and admired, to have his masculine vanity flattered. And she had gone away after laughing at his nose without giving him a chance to tell of his prowess.

"But I will win her yet," he said to himself. "The next time I play golf I will wear a sun mask."

And the next day it rained.

Being unable to stay in the house and commune with his thoughts, he went outdoors and communed with them. The sobbing wind drove the rain under his umbrella. His soul was on fire, but that did not keep his clothes dry. And just as the sun had begun to shine again and the fit of blues was being evaporated into the blue of the atmosphere he met her once more and again she laughed.

"Are you trying to wash your nose down to its proper size and color?" she asked.

After she was gone it occurred to him that he should have said something to the effect that it was cruel for young women to inflict blows on other people's noses, but he did not think of that in time.

In a state of desperation he determined to invite her to go rowing with him and see if the effect of the sun on her own nose did not make her a bit sympathetic.

"Like takes to like," he reasoned, "and when noses develop an affinity for one another it may happen that hearts also will beat in unison."

But she prudently sheltered her face with a parasol and mischievously asked him whether, if his arms should give out, he could not row the boat home with his splendidly developed nose.

He rubbed vaseline on his nose that night, but it did not soothe his heart.

He wished she would do something to imperil her life, so he might rescue her and make himself a hero, but she was as careful of her life as she was of her complexion.

"Don't you ever go automobilizing?" he asked.

"Not unless I'm sure the driver can see the end of his nose, at least," she answered.

While this was plainly a hint for an invitation, he felt that he could not endure more bumps on such a sore point as his nose.

But there must be an end to all things, even to raw noses, and no sensible girl ever will lose a good beau for the fun of teasing him about his personal misfortunes. After he had been gnawing at his heart till it was almost as sore as his nose, only he did not wear it on his sleeve, so it could not be seen, he surprised her one day humming a little air with the refrain: "He should propose despite his nose."

At least she made him think he had surprised her. Whether she really knew he was within hearing or not the historian will not attempt to say, but the aforesaid historian has his suspicions. At all events he took the hint and proposed—a game of golf. He persuaded himself that the links would be the best place to suggest to her the delight of linking her life to his.

"I don't know how to play," she protested.

"You begin by making a tee," he explained.

"Yes," she said, "and how much does that count?"

"It does not count anything."

"Then what's the use of doing it?"

"Why, the tee is what you drive from."

"Well, why can't we have the tea here at home and you take me for a drive in the automobile?"

"That wouldn't be golf."

"But don't you think it would be lovely?"

So they had tea and the automobile drive and she never said a word about his nose. It was getting nearly well anyway. However, he did not propose. He was afraid she might refuse him and then the whole delicate courtship would come to an end.

Imagine his consternation when the next day he saw her on the links learning golf under the guidance of another fellow. His heart raged with jealousy.

Competition is the life of courtship. He called on her boldly that evening and began the conversation thus:

"Did you come out of the game with a free heart and a whole nose?"

Blushing she rubbed off a fleck or two of white powder, which had been applied a little too freely in an effort to hide the sunburn.

"I don't mind burnt noses," she said.

"It's much more painful to have one's nose broken," he replied.

"Have you had that experience, too?"

"I don't know. I want you to tell me that."

"I'm sure it looks all right to me."

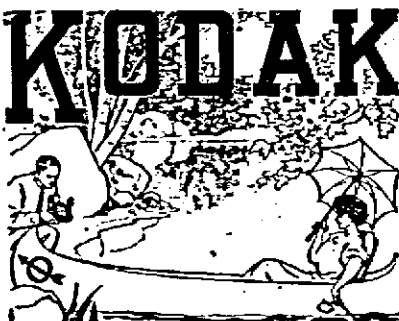

And with that the two powdered noses got into such close proximity to one another that the historian delicately withdrew.
